

1. Each lovely grace

William Corkine

Each love-ly grace my la- dy doth pos- sess, let all men view and 10

in their view ad- mire, in whose sweet breast all vir- tuous thoughts do

15

rest: zeal- ous to pi- ty, chaste in her own de- sire. And to make up a rare and wor- thy crea- ture, both wise and chaste, and fair in form and fea- ture, Ent- er but in- to thought of her per- fec- ti- on; thou wilt con- fess, thou wilt con-

20

30 fess, thou wilt con fess, and in con- fess- ing prove how none de-

35 serves like praise, nor yet like love.
